Programs and services

Extracorporeal Membrane Oxygenation (ECMO) provides life-saving support for patients with severe heart or lung failure by temporarily taking over the function of these organs, allowing them to rest and heal. By investing in this technology and care teams, critically ill patients are now able to receive life-saving care without being transferred.

Level 3 Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) equipped to provide comprehensive care to infants at any gestational age or those with critical health conditions requiring specialized interventions. UT Health Tyler can offer continuous access to a full range of respiratory support, advanced imaging and the latest in neonatal care technologies.
